

Allowing cell phone use on planes would be a nightmare. People on flights need to be able to sleep, read, and work in relative peace. Common experience tells us that people talking on cell phones speak much louder than they would if the person on the other end were sitting right next to them. I am a frequent leisure traveler, and if cell phones are allowed, I would absolutely do everything I could to avoid air travel.